

Angelo Calleja (brother), Anthony and Mary (parents), and brother Gino Calleja

Beatrice Calleja Palmier and Claire Calleja (Diane's cousin)

(L-R) Kirsty Calleja, Kelvin Calleja, Jessica Vella (sitting), Andrea Pizzuto

Halfway through the reception, the bride decided trainers would be more comfortable

Diane with her brother, Br Etienne

Maid of honour and best friend, Isabelle Tanti

The whole wedding was very much a 'family affair' with the flowers created by her brother-in-law Gino Calleja, and a choir made up of a group of friends.

The catering was by La Patisserie and music at the reception was by The Mics.

Unfortunately, just before the wedding Diane's sister came down with chicken pox.

"She came for the Mass but stayed in the balcony where no one could go near her but the priest Fr. Joe Mamo OFM Conv as part of the introduction told everyone that although she was not with us she could follow the whole celebration and be part of it from afar!"

Diane and Tonio set off for their honeymoon, a Scandinavian cruise, but – as luck would have it – Diane's exposure to chicken pox decided to surface. "We had to come back! I broke out in a rash from head to toe. So we had to interrupt our cruise, caught a plane from Finland and came back home. Oh well, these things happen!" shrugs Diane with her infectious smile.

It's a good thing she is an easygoing person who doesn't make mountains out of molehills, since not many brides would be able to laugh about having such a start to married life!

PHOTOS BY PINKISH LINE